Re: Public Comment on Proposed New Rules

Dear Commissioners,

I recently read an article about possible rule changes. These were mentioned in the article as, "Election committees include the name of the candidate, the office sought and the year of the election" and "Ballot measure committees identify in their names the top three donors in descending order of the amount given".

I fully and wholeheartedly agree with such rules. When a committee calls itself a euphemistic title such as Californians for a Better State or Californians for a Cleaner State, etc., it means absolutely nothing. I'd like to know who these people are. Listing the names of the top donors is a wonderful idea. If someone feels strongly enough about something, they shouldn't hide behind a useless committee name.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
